FRENCH SUNDAYS,

OR,

NO SUNDAYS AT ALL.

FRANCE.

COUNCIL OF FIVE HUNDRED,
25th Messidor (July 15th).

ON the order of the day for renewing the discussion on the project respecting the decadery festivals, in which one of the regulations is, that marriages should only be celebrated on the decadi:

Gauthier (of Calvados).—Marriage, that prolific source of virtue and of pleasure, will surely meet no obstacle from the representatives of a nation. No, the legislative body would not choose to retard the accomplishment of the wishes of nature, whose voice is so powerful in hearts which aspire to an union.

"I suspect your committee oppose it in this place: and I cannot conceive why, improving on the fantastical and ridiculous rules of the Roman pontiff, it should withdraw from the celebration of marriage nine days out of ten, whereas he was contented to exclude only six days out of seven. It will be easy for me to demonstrate the inconvenience of this measure. I will suppose a trader, a mariner or a soldier on the point of marriage, and who only waits for this blessed decadi, obliged to depart on the premidi proceeding when on a long voyage, in obedience to the law—shall such a person be obliged to withdraw from a beloved sweetheart the name of spouse, to which he chiefly aspires?" (Murmurs.)

The orator demanded the celebration of marriage should be allowed every day, from the rising to the setting sun.

Heutault Lamerville.—"If you do not adopt the measure proposed, your decadery fetes will possess neither power, nor majesty, nor attraction, nor any thing else than the shadow of existence. The article on the celebration of marriage establishes the greatest of our institutions. Of the three great events of life, birth, marriage and death, it is marriage which carries with it and deserves the greatest degree of solemnity; and it is the act which operates most strongly on the senses and the imaginations of men. We hear of the inconveniences which would attend marriages being confined to the decadi; but before the revolution were marriages celebrated every day? And if you attend to individual inconvenience, you oppose obstacles to every general measure."

The Council then proceeded to the discussion of the first article—

"That the decadis and days of National Festivals shall be days of repose throughout the Republic."

Grand Molson.—"It seems to me, that something more efficacious shoul! be adopted. What! while the High Priest of Rome so long attacked by philosophy, and at length dethroned by our brave defenders, is obliged to carry about from place to place his vagabond piety, shall his Ministers dare still to exercise, in the midst of us, an insolent despotism? They say that the requisition of the young men is not contrary to the principles of their religion, which they represent as abhorring bloodshed, and maintain that Sundays should be consecrated to God, in idleness and sloth.

"Thus, the inhabitants of the country are obliged to observe the festivals thirty-six decadis, and, forced by the Priests to keep holy the Sundays, are restrained from work for more than a third part of the year. Vigorous measures must be taken. It must be decreed that all festivals and religious ceremonies should be performed on the decadis. For too long a time has the sceptre of the cross pressed upon the French people. It is time to relieve them from the chains of fanaticism, as they are already freed from the fetters of royalty. Refer all ceremonies to the decadi, and the people, impatient of the yoke of the priests, will celebrate them on that day. Let the priests who refuse to comply be punished, and their magazines of relics shut up Let them be confined to their sanctuaries, and if they choose to say their prayers their own way, we shall not go to disturb them."

The article was ordered to be printed.

On the articles for obliging all shops to be shut upon decadi—

Genisieux—Every republican beholds with indignation the scandalous practice of selling goods publicly on decadi in the streets of Paris whereas on Sunday the shops are hermetically closed. This formal contempt of the laws should be severely punished. The article was agreed to.

Briot.—After some strong invectives against the contempt shewn for the new institutions, proposed that, under the several penalties, no person be suffered to shut up their shops of a Sunday, or shew any respect for it, though they might if they pleased remain idle in their houses. Referred to a committee.

Crueze-Latouch (on the same subject being resumed the next day) denied the right of the Legislature to say to a freeman on such a day you shall, and on such another you shall not work. To employ this coercion would only irritate opinions, inflame the passions, and create discontent; whereas if citizens where obliged to shut up their shops on the decadi, their own interest would soon prevail upon them to keep them open on Sunday. Men, according to his opinion, were entitled to abstain from work when they pleased.

Several members spoke in favour of compelling the shops to be opened on a Sunday.

Lucius Buonaparte (brother to the general)—"Crueze Latouche has exposed to you those eternal principles, which never will be forgotten within these wall. The decadi is the only national festival—yes, you have a right to say so—it is the only national festival; and you have a right to ordain that it shall be observed by the cessation of any ostensible labor. But have you a right on other days to set bounds to the repose or labor of the people? I repeat, have you a right to say to a freeman, On such a day you SHALL and on such a day you SHALL NOT work?—(Murmurs.) Persecution but inflames fanaticism. It renders it more furious—it lends it fresh arms, and it redoubles its strength. Even in Rome, the centre of superstition, it was never ordained that the Jews should work on a Saturday, which with them is observed as a Sabbath; and shall we Frenchmen, we republicans, give such a blow to individual liberty? I move the order of the day."

Several members called to have the discussion closed.

Lecointre Puyraveau was in favor of the restraint, considering the shutting up shops on Sunday as an act of disobedience, and an external sign of hatred to the revolution and the republic.

The council adjourned without coming to any resolution on the subject.

ON THE HOUSE AND LAND TAX.

From the Hampshire Gazette.

MR. BUTLER,

I wish you to republish the following calculation, or table, originally printed at Portsmouth, (N. H) with the additional observations. The federal tax on houses, &c. wants nothing but elucidation to make it perfectly agreeable to every candid and benevolent American.

"For the perusal of those who have not leisure to go into a calculation on the subject, the following statement is made of the tax on houses. It will be remembered, that the valuation is to include in the building the lot on which the house stands, not exceeding two acres, and out houses. If these are valued at 100 dollars, the tax is 20 cents. If

200	40	If	4000	20
300	60		5000	25
400	80		6000	30
500	1 00		7000	42
600	1 80		8000	48
700	2 10		9000	54
800	2 40		10000	60
900	2 70		15000	105
1000	3		25000	225
2000	8		50000	500
3000	12

This may easily be made more particular by comparing it with the second section of the tax act. It appears, for the consolation of the poorer sort, that the palace worth 50,000 dollars, is to pay five times as much in proportion to its value as the cottage that is worth only 500 dollars."

Thus—Suppose there is in Boston or Philadelphia, a mechanic, whose house and shop are worth 500 dollars, he will pay a tax of one dollar. Suppose there are 500 such mechanics, they will, of course, pay a tax of 500 dollars.

Suppose further, that one man owns a house and out buildings worth 50000 dollars, he will then have to pay a tax or 500 dollars, that is, he will pay as great a tax for property worth only 50,000 dollars, as the 500 mechanics will pay for property worth 250 000 dollars.

Or thus: My neighbour's farm house and barn are worth 500 dollars; my house and buildings (and I am a farmer too) are worth 5000 dollars; now my neighbour will pay a tax of one dollar, and I a tax of 25 dollars: that is I shall pay as great a tax for property worth 5000 dollars, as 25 brother farmers will pay for property worth 12,500 dollars.

And if the palace of the great and illustrious Farmer of Mount Vernon is worth 50,000 dollars, he will pay as great a tax for it as 500 other farmers of the above description, will pay for property worth 250,000 dollars.

The foregoing statements shew clearly that the federal government have consulted the interest of the poorer classes of citizens; and have aimed in this, as indeed they have in all their fiscal laws, to draw the public revenue from the purses of the wealthy, and if there is a jacobin, or Frenchified American, who now bawls against the tax as burthensome to the poor, I would beg leave to warn my fellow citizens to be on their guard, and in the language of inspiration, would say, "Be sober, be vigilant, because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour."

TRANSLATION

OF THE LETTER FROM LOWER SAZONY, September 26th, 1798.

"Let us not too haſtily credit the news which already repreſents Buonaparte in extreme diſtreſs, which declares that he has been repulſed by the cavalry of the Beys, retreating towards Alexandria, entering that place, and there entrenching himſelf as in the only poſt which is tenable againſt his enemies;—for, although theſe reports are ſubſequent to the accounts which announced his entry into Cairo, it is difficult to ſuppoſe that, being maſter of that city and of all lower Egypt, he ſhould have ſuffered ſuch a reverſe as to occaſion him ſuddenly to retreat ſixty leagues—and that, with choſen troops, the beſt artillery of Europe, and ſkilful tactics, he ſhould not have been able to maintain his firſt advantages againſt the Orientals, but little accuſtomed to war, without tactics and without artillery.

"I am ſenſible that there are ſituations in which valour and ſkill muſt yield to numbers, that the beſt artillery may become uſeleſs in vaſt plains of ſand, and that European tactics may be diſconcerted by the ſhock of thoſe enormous maſſes of cavalry, which the Beys, in uniting their forces, will aſſemble. I likewiſe know that the French have enemies to combat in Egypt much more formidable than the Beys, and againſt which neither valor nor tactics can avail—the climate, peſtilence, and famine. But let us admit that Buonaparte has ſucceeded againſt theſe enemies, and that the beſt part of Egypt has ſubmitted to his power—Do you believe that he has not been weakened by the enemies over whom he has triumphed? Do you believe that, his communication with Europe being henceforth entirely cut off, he has nothing to dread from the diſcontents of the country which is ſubjected; nor from the Beys who are ſtill in arms; nor from the forces of the Grand Signior, become the enemy of the Republic; nor from the diſeaſes, which will deſolate his army before it is ſeaſoned to the climate?

"The hoſtility of the Grand Signior, and the impoſſibility of receiving ſuccours from Europe, muſt inevitably prove fatal in a country where he cannot recruit his force. A month ago we might reaſonably have doubted the hoſtility of the Grand Signior. Every thing led to a belief that he approved, or at leaſt permitted the expedition of the French—the confidence with which they ſailed to Egypt, the pains taken by their friends in that country, the apparent indifference of the Divan, and the total inactivity of the Turkiſh Miniſter, who ſaw all their movements at Paris, without demanding any explanation from the Divan. But there is no longer either indifference or inactivity on the part of the Ottomans; and while the Journaliſts remark that the Turkiſh Miniſter at Paris wears an air of ſurpriſe, the French Agent at Conſtantinople is truly aſtoniſhed at the vigorous meaſures of the Porte.

"You are acquainted with thoſe meaſures involving a declaration of war—You are acquainted with the very ſupplicating memorial preſented by Ruffin; the interceſſion of the Batavian Miniſter, and his ſevere reception; the conduct of the Spaniſh Miniſter, who, forgetting all decorum, told the Reis-Effendi that the French had invaded Egypt for the benefit of the Grand Signior; the dry and ſenſible reply of the Ottoman Miniſter to this ſhocking incongruity; the arreſts to which Ruffin has been ſubjected; the order which has been given him to take down the inſignia of the Republic; the firmans directed againſt all the French; the military preparations commenced againſt them in every quarter; in fine, all that dignity and energy which, in the Divan, has ſucceeded to that imprudent indifference, the effects of which preſent to every neutral power a great and memorable leſſon.

The fleet of the Sans-culottes loſt in the late engagement with admiral Nelſon, 5226 men, killed, blown up and drowned, and 3705 priſoners,—according to authentic accounts in the Leyden Gazette. The priſoners may be conſidered as deſtroyed, in the determination of admiral Nelſon to land them.

TRANSLATIONS,

From the "NOUVELLES POLITIQUES" of Leyden, October 9.

Extract of a letter from Paris, Oct. 2.

The return of the diviſion of Bompart to Breſt, appears to be confirmed: He had not been able to continue his courſe for Ireland, on account of the Engliſh ſquadrons which he knew to be in thoſe quarters. We are without any further news from Malta, much leſs from Buonaparte, nor from Egypt.

Extract of a lettter from Conſtantinople, dated September 5.

"At length the event ſo unexpected to ariſe out of the moſt antient alliances, has come to paſs: yeſterday the firſt interpreter of the Porte communicated to all the miniſters as well as of allied as of neutral powers, the declaration of war of the Grand Signior againſt France. This piece is the ſtrongeſt and moſt vigorous which has for a long time iſſued from the Ottoman Cabinet: Its griefvances, its reproaches are not diſguiſed, and its expreſſions ſtill leſs ſo. It there paints the proceedings of the French government with a pencil of the darkeſt ſhade: and when we call to mind the antient amity which has ſubſiſted during ſo many ages between the Turkiſh and French empires, the footing of intimacy upon which the two powers have ſo long been, and ſtill were, until within a few years, one cannot help accounting the animoſity, which pervades the hard and bitter ſtyle of the Ottoman manifeſto, amongſt the changes unprovided againſt in the national reports, which the inſtability of the political world frequently involves, but which have never been ſo frequent or ſo deciſive as ſince the epoch of the French revolution. It deals out with prodigality againſt the French nation, the epithets of treacherous, perfidious, faithleſs, infidel: It reproaches her with projects of uſurpation and of conqueſt, It complains of her ambition and of her want of faith in the obſervation of treaties, &c. In a word, this declaration, conceived in the greateſt hatred, has produced the effect, which might be expected from it; it has excited the higheſt degree of popular fury againſt the French:—they have all been arreſted; and, if there remained a ſingle individual at large, the ſuſpicions which are entertained againſt France, of having fomented the revolt of Paſſawan Oglou and of having furniſhed him with the means of ſo long a reſiſtance, would coſt him his life. The rupture with France is to be accompanied with new efforts againſt him: he is to be preſſed with the greateſt energy: all overtures of reconciliation, all negociations have ceaſed: Widdin is more ſtreightened than ever; and Paſſawan Oglou begins to fail in proviſions. In virtue of the moſt expreſs orders from the Porte, meaſures have been taken to eſtabliſh order amongſt the troops of the Seraſkier, who is to act againſt him. The views which they appear to have had on Wallachia and Moldavia will be fruſtrated at once."

Extract of a letter from Raſtadt, Sept. 30.

"Every part of the political horizon, blackens daily more and more; the clouds thicken, and the thunder ſeems ready to burſt: the ſeparation between France and Auſtria, has attained its extremeſt degree: already this tenſion, on the point of breaking, would have been ſhivered, if in the conteſt, already puſhed to exceſs, to move were not only to ſhed blood: but the two parties realize, that they will have to combat for their exiſtence: Auſtria is not ignorant, that the revolutioary principles ſet in activity by French influence will have no object but the overthrow of her throne, and that of all the princes of the family. France beholds the numbers of her adverſaries encreaſing with the developement of her projects; while ſix years of war have utterly exhauſted the reſources, which ſhe needs to enable her to ſuſtain the efforts of her domeſtic and foreign enemies."

COIRE, (in the Griſons) Sept. 15.

Our former government, which the influence of France had cauſed to be ſhaken in ſome of its antient eſtabliſhments, at the commencement of the year, has been reſtored. Meſſieurs Troll, Burger-maſter, and ancient Preſident of the confederation; Daniel Salis chief of the tribes; and Frederick Salis, Recorder of the Federation, have been, by a plurality of the tribes, re-inſtated in their ancient places and dignities. All other citizens of the Griſons, who had been turned out of office, have been re-inſtated.

[Thus the trade of Government-making daily declines; the time will ſoon come, when all the humbled vaſſals of the Great Nation muſt ſhake off their garments of blood, and aſſume their old habits. Thus do the works of the revolutionizers periſh before their eyes—thus do they follow them, ere they have reſted from their labors.]

COIRE, 17th September.

The opening of the Diet of the Three Griſon Leagues, took place the 12th of this month at Ilanz. The moſt eſſential buſineſs of the Diet was the appointment of a Committe to anſwer the French Reſident, Florent Guyot, relative to the ſatisfaction which he has demanded. They alſo aboliſhed by a great majority, the form of oath preſcribed at the reformation in 1794.

Recommencement of Hoſtilities

Extract of a letter from Paris, 2d October.

Although the addreſs to the French nation, relative to the recommencement of hoſtilities in Germany and in Italy (which want of room prevents us from inſerting this day) is a ſymptom too alarming, not to give room for ſuppoſing the probability of ſuch an event; and notwithſtanding the movement of troops towards the Upper Rhine and Switzerland, of which the advices from Straſburg contain the details; the friends of peace ought not yet to renounce all hope of ſeeing it renewed at leaſt in Germany. In giving an account of the augmentation of the forces at Kehl, Auenheim, and upon the whole border of Alſace, the ſame letters from Straſburg announce, not only that general Schauenburg has not yet entered into the country of the Griſons, but alſo the probability that he will not enter it, in order not to furniſh a motive of rupture to Auſtria, who has declared that "ſhe will conſider that ſtep as a declaration of war." Another motive for believing that, in ſpite of preparations each day more menacing, between the French republic and Auſtria, neither party has yet renounced the continuance of negociations, is the diſpoſition, which is about to be made, in regard to the place of envoy extraordinary of France to the Batavian republic. Theſe functions are about to be confided to citizen Lombard (of Langres) formerly member of the Convention, and now judge of the Tribunal of Caſſation: he ſet off the day before yeſterday for the Hague. We infer from this, that, this poſt having before been deſtined for the miniſter Roberjot, one of our Plenipotentiaries at Raſtadt, this laſt cannot very ſoon return, and that conſequently there is every appearance of a happy period to the negociation.

[Did ever man hear before, ſuch flimſy evidences? Becauſe Mr. ſcoundrel Schauemburg is not going to invade the Griſons, an attempt to fraternize whom the emperor has declared he will conſider a declaration of war; and becauſe the directory have concluded not to remove one of their jugglers from Raſtadt to Holland, as they had thought of doing; this wiſeacee concludes that war will not take place, although it has formally recommenced; and, as it ſeems, the directory have found it neceſſary to utter a new compound of Sophiſtry and jargon, to reconcile their ſlaves to the meaſure. No; this fellow is a fool. The war has recommenced, as it ought long ago to have done; the Emperor has found, that the inſidious villains, while contending, months together, for the demolition of Kehl, were aiming only at the demolition of his whole Empire. He has wiſely reſolved to be beforehand with them, and to ſtrike, himſelf, the blow their treachery meditated againſt him. From the above elaborate production, as well as from the whole tenor of various late foreign prints, now before me, which, no longer declaiming on the neceſſity of "hurling tyrants from their thrones," "avenging humanity," and ſpreading the "impreſcriptible rights of man," breathe only ſighs after peace,—the inference is inevitable that they find themſelves in an attitude, in which they look upon war with horror. This is a fact of the moſt glorious nature. Now will their own maxims be marſhalled againſt them. "Eternal war againſt tyrants" will be the general cry; the hardy peaſantry of Germany, the free citizens of Ruſſia, the enlightened followers of Mahomet, under united banners, will march on to the exploſion and annihilation of the filthy, lewd, profane and nonſenſical republic. While the nation of Nelſons confines them within their dens, other juſtly mercileſs enemies every where encircle them with a wall of fire. This work is begun: mean while they are buſy in their old and proper trade, of cutting one anothers throats.]

October 3.

The laſt news from Switzerland depict that country as tranquil, ſince the terrible example, which the miſerable people of Unterwald have been ſubjected to: thoſe of Sweitz have been obliged to deliver up the principal chiefs, who had cauſed it to take a part in the inſurrection. As to the countries of the Griſons, the reſident of France, Florent Guyot, has quitted it: he is at Ragaz, in the diſtrict of Sargens, canton of Lintz. It is nevertheleſs apparent, that the ſatisfaction which he has demanded, involves hoſtilities, of which, in the preſent conjuncture, it would be extremely difficult to calculate the conſequences.

[Tranquillity in Switzerland! Yes, ſhe is tranquil—quiet as a felled ox, or a plantation after a hurricane. Her tranquillity muſt be ſublime, and her days muſt paſs in wonderful equanimity, diſturbed only by ſome requiſition, or one or two executions now and then, for inſubordination and inciviſm.—Look at this beautiful tranquillity, Mr. Gallatin, do look at it, and let us have a navy to defend ourſelves, and revenues to defray the expenſe of it.]

LEYDEN, October 8.

We have received by the Poſt of the Empire, on the 3d of this month, the order of the Porte, addreſſed to Caimacan, by which, in announcing the diſmiſſion of the Grand Vizier, Izzed Mehemet Pacha, "as abettor of crafty deſigns of France," and the appointment of his ſucceſſor Juſſuf Pacha, Governor of Erzerum, orders the publication by him of war againſt the French, and the adoption of meaſures to repreſs their hoſtilities.

It appears that this event, ſo unexpected; the unequivocal part which Ruſſia has, at the ſame time; taken, the diſaſter of the Toulon fleet; the dangerous poſition of Buonaparte; the ill-ſucceſs of the expedition concerted againſt Ireland, [and, tho' the Leyden Editor has omitted it, we may add, the noble vigour of the American adminiſtration]—that all theſe circumſtances combined, have augmented the deſire of peace, on the part of France, and that the conceſſions made at Raſtadt, are the firſt fruits of it, which muſt ſoon be followed by other effects.

An Expedition againſt Leghorn was talked of: the convoy, which it was pretended had left Toulon to take poſſeſſion of it, is returned, according to news from Paris of the 4th of October.

Extract of a letter from Conſtantinople, 2d September.

Yeſterday, we beheld here a ſpectacle, which we had been far from expecting theſe many years to come, and which, without doubt, will be accounted amongſt the moſt aſtoniſhing and unexpected events, amongſt thoſe political combinations, which wander from the natural order of things, but which the French revolution has hatched in great abundance. We ſaw a Ruſſian fleet, numerous and well-equipped, coming from the Black Sea, paſſing before the Seraglio, and traverſing the Canal, to enter the Archipelago. The coup d'oeil was ſuperb; but it was yet more curious to behold the Muſſelmen, ſhouting at an event, which they would have regarded, two years ago, as fatal to the intereſts of the Ottoman Porte. The multitude whom the ſpectacle drew together, was immenſe; and the joy it excited, unbounded and incredible. Such is the effect of the impreſſion which the expedition of the French into Egypt has cauſed, and the perſuaſion, which has reſulted from it, that a government, which calls itſelf the Great Nation, aſpires to univerſal domination by the deſtruction of all others, by the abolition of their worſhip, of their manners, and their cuſtoms. Ruſſia has profited of it. Now, cry the Turks (enraptured to behold the Ruſſian fleet advancing under crowded ſail and a fair wind towards the White Sea)—Now the peace with Ruſſia may endure long, long indeed—May it laſt for ages! In truth, it is difficult to ſee a naval armament under the Ruſſian flag in thoſe waters where the Porte never till now ſuffered any foreign fleet,—to ſee it paſſing under the walls of the Seraglio, without finding a pledge, not merely of reconciliation, but even of the cloſe alliance which is eſtabliſhed between the Grand Signior and the Emperor of the Ruſſias. The Porte had nevertheleſs taken certain precautions, compriſed in a convention which has been concluded, relative to this paſſage, between the General Tamara, Miniſter of the Court of Ruſſia, and the Reis Effendi. In virtue of that agreement, the Ruſſian veſſels have only paſſed by two and two, in traverſing the canal; and they were prohibited from forming a junction till after having paſſed the Dardanelles, and a certain diſtance from it.

Juſt after the Ruſſian fleet had paſſed, in the midſt of the marks of public joy, the Porte received, directly from Egypt, the news, that the Arabs had had the imprudence to attack the French in their entrenchments. They were repulſed with a very conſiderable loſs; but the French, on their ſide, have not obtained this advantage without ſuffering ſeverely. At the cloſe of this action, Buonaparte, at the head of ſix thouſand men, of the flower of his army, had taken poſſeſſion of Cairo. Independently of the diminution which the French army experienced by theſe continual combats, the number which it had loſt by ſickneſs was ſtill more conſiderable, at the middle of Auguſt: they were found to be in great quantities in the hoſpitals: the reſt of the forces of Buonaparte occupied Alexandria and other quarters.

[I publiſh the following, although the reſult it counts on has been anticipated, becauſe a gentleman has taken pains to ſend it all the way from Georgia.]

Auguſta, (Geo.) 21ſt Nov. 1798.

POPULI VOX DEI.

The leaving out of Mr. Baldwin in our federal repreſentation, is a happy illuſtration of the foregoing maxim, and there is no doubt but it would apply generally, were the public mind equally informed on every ſubject on which it has to decide, as well as it is in the preſent inſtance. Returns from ſixteen counties have been received, by which it appears Col. Talliaferro of Wilkes county, has 3635 votes, James Jones, Eſq. of Chatham county, 3364, and Mr. Baldwin 2828:—the eight counties, whoſe returns are not known, are generally remote, and bear no compariſon in point of population to the others, ſo that if Mr. Baldwin has the moſt favorable poll which can be counted upon throughout them, it will not affect the election of Col. Tallioferro and Mr. Jones.

The famous rebel, HOLT, has been conducted a priſoner to Dublin, and his party deſtroyed.

A fellow was committed to jail on Saturday laſt, by Mr. Alderman JENNINGS, for damning the Preſident, and all who took his part. He is a laborer, and a native of Virginia. The ſign of the Liberty Pole and Cap, in the Northern Liberties, was the ſcene of his civiſm. His name is Langford Heron.

By the Polaſki from Hamburg, at New-York, papers to October 16 are received. The only news of any moment, is a report, ſaid to have come by this veſſel, that Buonaparte's army had been totally deſtroyed.

The Dagger Man ſhall hear from me again, anon.

N. B. If Jaſper is determined to ſuppreſs the promiſed "Addreſs of the United Iriſhmen," bring it to me, and I will give it place.

His E. of P. is laid on the ſhelf only for want of room.

The Curtain Juggler will not be forgotten.

Poſt Office inſolence and oppreſſion, (being a long hiſtory) requires more time than I can at preſent beſtow on it.

MARRIED—On Sunday evening, the 9th of December, by the Reverend Samuel Magaw, Dr. JOHN MEER, to Mrs. SARAH GOULD.

——, On the ſame Evening, by the Rev. Samuel Magaw, Mr. JOHN MOORE, junr. to Miſs SARAH GOULD, both of this City.

CONGRESS.

In the Houſe of Repreſentatives of the United States, this day, orders were ſeverally paſſed for the appointment of a committee of claims, a committee of reviſal and unfiniſhed buſineſs, and a committee of commerce and manufactures.—The houſe then proceeded to ballot for a chaplain; whereupon it appeared that for the REV. ASHBELL GREEN, there were 55 votes, and eight ſcattering—one of which was for the Rev. Dr. Prieſtly.

The houſe then adjourned till to-morrow morning, 11 o'clock.

In the Senate this day, Mr. Stockton, from the committee on the Preſident's Speech, reported the form of an anſwer thereto, the conſideration of which was poſtponed till to-morrow, and in the mean time ordered to be printed.

The right REV. BISHOP WHITE was unanimouſly choſen chaplain to the Senate.

A CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.

JOHN A. SHAEFFER, of Philadelphia, who has for a few years past been in the southern States, has had the effrontery to draw several Bills of Exchange on Timothy Pickering, Esq. Secretary of State, and myself, and by that means has defrauded a number of persons of their money, deceiving them by an exhibition of letters and papers with the names affixed of divers public characters and reputable merchants highly recommendatory of said Shaeffer; to one of these papers I find my name subscribed, but I do not know the man; these are villainous forgeries! To prevent further imposition, I have to request the printers of Newspapers in the United States to publish this for the benefit of their fellow-citizens. SAMUEL MEREDITH,

Treasurer of the United States.
